

Robin Eissler

Director

Robin Eissler oversees operations and sales at jetAVIVA and has more than twenty years experience in aircraft sales. She was formerly the President and CEO of Jet Quest, Inc and under her leadership the company tripled in size. Prior to jetAVIVA's acquisition of Jet Quest, she was recognized by the Austin Business Journal as one of Austin's Top 50 CEOs. She personally has completed hundreds of millions of dollars in aircraft transactions over her twenty year career with her main focus of helping high net worth clients achieve their aviation goals. Her client list includes celebrities, Forbes 100 Billionaires and many small business owners.

Robin is an active advocate for the business aviation industry and is the founder of the PALS Sky Hope Disaster Relief Program. Her successful coordination efforts during the business aviation relief effort after Hurricane Katrina in 2005 and the earthquake in Haiti in 2010 inspired her to form the Sky Hope program. She was the co-chair of the 2012 and 2013 NBAA Leadership Conferences and is also a Certified Aviation Manager (CAM). She currently sits on the NBAA CAM Governing Board. Her expertise covers a broad range of aircraft types and she is experienced in a variety of aircraft management, tax and operational issues.

Although no longer an active pilot, Robin holds a Private Pilot license. She is a graduate of Florida Atlantic University where she studied Business Management and Entrepreneurship. Robin and her husband, Trevor, have three children. Robin is based in Georgetown, Texas.